

South Dakota Social Studies Content Standards

Adopted August 24, 2015

Acknowledgments

The revised Social Studies Content Standards are a result of the contributions of educators from across the state. Many hours were devoted to research and thoughtful consideration of issues to ensure that the standards would reflect rigorous social studies teaching and provide opportunities for students to learn important social studies concepts, facts, and processes. The Social Studies Content Standards Revision Committee members represent concerned individuals across the state dedicated to their profession and to high-quality social studies education. Without their contributions, the revision of the Social Studies Content Standards would not have been possible. The South Dakota Department of Education wishes to express appreciation and gratitude to the individuals and the organizations they represent who contributed expertise and time to the revision of South Dakota’s Social Studies Content Standards.

Social Studies Overview

Preface

These Social Studies Content Standards are set forth to ensure graduates of South Dakota’s public schools have the knowledge, skills, and competencies essential to leading productive, fulfilling, and successful lives as they continue their education, enter the workforce, and assume their civic responsibilities.

The final document evolved from recent research in best practices in teaching, adoption of rigorous content standards in other core subjects, experience in classrooms with the existing South Dakota Content Standards, the advancement of published standards from other states, the National Curriculum Standards for Social Studies, United States history, geography, civics, and economics, numerous professional publications, and lengthy discussions by experienced kindergarten through post-secondary South Dakota educators.

The outcomes students are expected to attain at each grade level are stated explicitly in these standards. With student mastery of this content, South Dakota schools will be competitive with the best educational systems in other states and nations. The standards are comprehensive and specific, they are rigorous, and they represent South Dakota’s commitment to excellence. The standards are firm but not unyielding; they will be modified in future years to reflect new research and scholarship.

Purpose and Key Considerations

Perhaps more than any other discipline, the social studies can provide students an opportunity to grow as independent decision-makers. This provides the foundation for pedagogy and instructional strategies. The standards in this document must be considered a vehicle to achieve greater educational goals. The standards are developmentally appropriate and logically sequenced for use as a framework to assist student growth in the following skills:

1. Responsible citizenship found in the Civics/Government standards.
2. Spatial awareness found in the Geography standards.
3. Economic literacy found in the Economics standards.
4. Historical analysis found in the History standards.

The South Dakota Social Studies Content Standards provide a listing of essential core content to be taught and learned. The standards are designed to guide the planning of instruction and to anchor the assessment of learning from kindergarten through twelfth grade. Outcomes are meant to inform content standards, assessment, provide information to teachers and students regarding student progress toward mastery of the standards, and specify targets for instruction and learning. The document presents a starting point for informed dialogue among those dedicated and committed to quality education in South Dakota. By providing a common set of goals and expectations for all students in all schools, this dialogue will be strengthened and enhanced.

Teachers can use the above skills to evaluate instruction and student performance. Curricular construction should make use of the above skills to guide curricular decisions. The standards in this document provide a roadmap to avoid redundancy except when necessary and to supply consistency across the state. Teachers, however, are not restricted to only the content represented. The depth and breadth of the social studies should provide teachers endless possibilities to create enlivened lessons that foster student advancement in social studies skills. Teachers are encouraged to measure instructional success by student advancement and not the amount of material covered or the quantity memorized. The following standards can guide the content selection to promote student achievement, but are not intended to limit instructional innovation. The social studies teacher aspires to provide instruction in the standards through meaningful, challenging, integrated, and active lessons. The standards support teachers in this quest. The foundation of these state standards is designed to foster responsible decision making that benefits the local and tribal community, state, nation, and world. Responsible citizens are informed, active, and recognize their connection with the world. The Social Studies Content Standards are organized into four disciplines: History, Geography, Civics/Government, and Economics. Each discipline is addressed at appropriate grade levels with increasing rigor and relevance.

As students move from kindergarten through grade 12, levels of cognitive demand and complexity of content, skills, and processes increase. New skills emerge and basic skills are subsumed within more advanced skills as students progress through the grades. Grade-level outcomes specify what students should know and be able to do by the end of each grade level. Because standards are not curriculum, any necessary review embedded in curriculum does not appear from grade-to-grade across grade-level standards. Teachers are charged with introducing skills in earlier grades before mastery is expected and with reviewing skills students will need to use in mastering the grade-level standards.

Notable Changes (from 2007 SS Standards document to the 2014 SS Standards document)

- Unified standards K-12 in all disciplines
- Used the terms "Anchor Standards" and "Grade-level Standards" to indicate larger goals and their subsequent grade level aim.
- Moved World and U.S. History under the discipline History
- Used C3 Framework skills and parallel South Dakota Literacy for History/Social Studies in Reading and Writing Standards to inform standards and outcomes
- Created skill-based, content standards including college, career, and civic readiness thinking skills: inquiry, communication, critical thinking, and problem solving
- Integrated Webb Leveling /DOK (Depth of Knowledge)
- Removed "Core" and "Advanced" distinctions
- Removed specific curriculum examples from within the standards
- Removed enabling skills and ensured they were embedded in content standards
- Wrote HS Economics for stand-alone Economics course compared to the 2007 document, which had HS Economics standards cross-referenced to another discipline
- Included standards for how humans culturally adapt to their environment in the K-2 Geography standards
- SD History now spans 3-5th grade, leaving the majority of the SD History outcomes in 4th grade and also ensuring the content is built upon in a learning progression
- Included standards for US History in grades 9-12 that cover from the Revolution to Reconstruction.

Organization of the South Dakota K-12 Social Studies Content Standards Document

Guide to the Number and Symbol System

The South Dakota K-12 Social Studies Content Standards include both K-12 anchor standards and grade-level standards (what students should know and be able to do) each grade level (K-8) or grade band (9-12).

The Anchor Standards are coded to show Grade Level/Grade Band, Discipline, and Anchor Standard only. Anchor Standards are the same for all grades K-12 and ensure that vertical progression occurs as students proceed from one grade to the next.

The Grade Level Standards are coded to show Grade Level/Grade Band, Discipline, Anchor Standard, and the Grade Level Standard (see example code below). Grade Level Standards are specific outcomes for the respective grade level or grade band.

Example:

Anchor Standard

High School Geography
K-12.G.1 Students will apply geospatial resources, including data sources and geographic tools to generate, interpret, and analyze information.
9-12.G.1.1	Use maps and other geographic representations, tools and technologies to acquire, process, and report information from a spatial perspective
9-12.G.1.2	Employ mental maps to organize information about cultures, places, and environment in a spatial context

Additional Resources

Since this document uses appropriate social studies terminology, a reader may occasionally encounter an unfamiliar term. In order to assist the reader with terminology used in this document, a glossary has been included with specific definitions to clarify intended meaning by discipline. In addition, a comprehensive glossary is provided as a sampling of possible information sources. Because new resources are constantly becoming available, this list is intended to be neither exhaustive nor required.

South Dakota used research-based resources to inform the newest SD standards. Starting in June 2014, the workgroup reviewed the C3 Framework – a skill set needed for students to be College, Career, and Civic ready. In June the workgroup began by utilizing the expertise of the writers of C3 Framework, reviewed the current SD Standards, and discussed how the framework and the current SD Content Standards could inform the next draft of the SD State SS Standards. The final South Dakota product is an amalgamation that was created from documents based in research, national association’s contributions, existing South Dakota Social Studies Standards, the C3 Framework, and the National Curriculum Standards for Social Studies. The following are the resources/associations that had been referred to at some point throughout the standards revision process:

American Bar Association
American Geographical Society
American Historical Association
Association of American Geographers
C3 Framework
Campaign for the Civic Mission of Schools
Center for Civic Education
Constitutional Rights Foundation Chicago
Constitutional Rights Foundation USA
Council for Economic Education
National Council for Geographic Education
National Council for History Education
National Council for the Social Studies
National Geographic Society
National History Day
Street Law, Inc.
The College Board
World History Association

General Introduction to C3 Framework

The C3 Framework served as inspiration for the graphic designed by the Social Studies Workgroup and it is intended to give a visual representation of the overarching themes within this standards document. The C3 Framework is split into four Dimensions: (1) Developing questions and planning inquiries; (2) applying disciplinary concepts and tools; (3) evaluating sources and using evidence; and (4) communicating conclusions and taking informed action.

C3 Integration & Parallels to the Visual on the Title Page

The South Dakota Social Studies Graphic utilizes elements from each of these Dimensions just as our standards documents sought to connect the C3 skills into our state standards. Along the right-hand side of the image is “inquiry” and it directly correlates with Dimension 1 of the C3 Framework, which is “developing questions and planning inquiries.” On the left-hand side is “communication”, which parallels with Dimension 4 of the C3 Framework: “communicating conclusions and taking informed action”. Finally, the four colored quadrants of the South Dakota layout reflect the four sub-elements of Dimension 2 “applying disciplinary concepts and tools” and includes specified history, geography, civics, and economics concepts and tools. Thus, this visual was adopted as a graphical representation of the parallels between the C3 Framework representing our commitment to increasing skill development and rigor in conjunction within the core disciplines of the social studies.

A Message to Teachers, Principals, Superintendents, and Others Who Will Use the Document

The Social Studies Content Standards Revision Committee was made up of a group of kindergarten through post-secondary educators who collaborated to establish a starting point for reaching South Dakota’s goal: each student graduates prepared for college, career, and civic life.

A set of standards is simply a place to begin—it lays the foundation for measurable, consistent, high-level student learning. Teachers, however, have the flexibility to consider the needs of their individual students and select the methods that will work best for their classrooms. Clearly, there is more to teaching and learning than these standards. The standards are a starting point in creating an environment where students can learn to live and thrive in a constantly changing, increasingly complex world.

Conclusion

The committee provides, through the standards document, a framework for the teaching and learning of social studies content, concepts, and skills. The committee members wish to emphasize, however, that the real goal of social studies teachers is to inspire students to become committed, participating citizens. This requires that students develop skills and dispositions that are difficult to assess. Teachers who accomplish this goal with students practice the art and science of teaching. They are professionals who prioritize content that leads to citizenship skill development, often beyond the achievement of the stated Social Studies Content Standards, rather than teaching simply to “cover” the material. Social Studies is so much more than facts, places, and dates; it is the singular discipline that enables students to obtain a rich and broad understanding of the complex world they inhabit. We believe that civic virtues are embedded within the standards, but are not specifically addressed due to the inability to measure them, i.e., volunteerism, honesty, loyalty. We are confident that teachers will emphasize the importance of these vital components of social studies teaching and learning.

High School U.S. History

Note: The South Dakota High School Graduation Requirements include a requirement for 1 credit of U.S. History. The standards have been labeled, below, to allow for flexibility within school districts across the state. Those labels indicate course options including Early U.S. History, Modern U.S. History, and Comprehensive U.S. History. A survey was sent to U.S. History teachers in South Dakota to gain feedback on the inclusion of Early U.S. History in the standards. From this survey, it was deemed necessary to convene an issue-specific workgroup of South Dakota U.S. History Teachers to help determine the best course of addressing the required content and time periods for High School U.S. History. The special workgroup is credited at the end of the standards document.

High School World History
K-12.H.1 Students will analyze how major events are chronologically connected and evaluate their impact on one another.
9-12.H.1.1	Distinguish between long-term causes and triggering events in the development and events of the Renaissance and Reformation
9-12.H.1.2	Identify patterns and analyze change and continuity in historical eras
K-12.H.2 Students will analyze and evaluate the impact of people, events, ideas and symbols upon history using multiple sources.
9-12.H.2.1	Use questions generated about individuals and groups of the Scientific Revolution and Enlightenment to assess the significance of their actions and work
9-12.H.2.2	Evaluate how historical events and developments of the French Revolution and Napoleonic Era were shaped by unique circumstances of time and place as well as broader historical contexts

9-12.H.2.3	Evaluate how agricultural and industrial revolutions were shaped by the unique circumstances of time and place
9-12.H.2.4	Analyze complex and interacting factors that influenced the perspectives and changes in ideologies of populations
9-12.H.2.5	Analyze multiple and complex effects of events and people related to the Cold War
K-12.H.3 Students will analyze and evaluate historical events from multiple perspectives
9-12.H.3.1	Analyze the ways in which the perspectives of those writing history shaped the history they produced in relation to exploration, imperialism, and expansion
9-12.H.3.2	Interpret and critique historical propaganda sources based on their maker, date, place of origin, intended audience, and purpose
K-12.H.4 Students will identify and evaluate the causes and effects of past, current and potential events, issues and problems.
9-12.H.4.1	Identify and distinguish between long-term causes and triggering events of WWI
9-12.H.4.2	Evaluate how economic conditions were shaped by the unique circumstances of the time and place
9-12.H.4.3	Analyze multiple and complex causes and effects of events of WWII
9-12.H.4.4	Identify and analyze historical content and events using disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of contemporary local, regional, and global problems, challenges, and opportunities
K-12.H.5 Students will develop historical research skills.
9-12.H.5.1	Determine the kinds of sources that will be helpful in answering compelling and supporting questions, taking into consideration multiple points of view represented in the sources, the types of sources available, and the potential uses of the sources
9-12.H.5.2	Evaluate the credibility of a source by examining how experts value the source
9-12.H.5.3	Identify historical evidence that draws information directly and substantively from multiple sources to detect inconsistencies in evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims

GLOSSARY

Area - Any defined space on Earth's surface expressed numerically in square units (as 1,000 square miles or kilometers), or by general location (as opposed to region which implies homogeneity).

Cardinal directions - The four main compass points: north (toward North Pole), south (toward South Pole), east (direction from which Earth rotates on its axis), and west (direction of Earth's rotation on axis). Intermediate directions are those between, e.g., N NW N. Terms such as "up" or "down" should never be used in reference to cardinal directions.

Compelling Questions – These are open-ended question that promote higher-order thinking and stimulate thought and discussion to achieve further understanding. These have also been called essential questions in the past.

-Example: How do we improve clean water while providing jobs, economic development and still maintain private property rights?

Culture - Learned human behavior. Culture traits are the things humans do or create, including: language, religion, economic and political systems, social patterns, ideas and sentiments, and technology and material goods. A culture is a group of people who share a relatively common way-of-life (e.g., Japanese; French; Inuit).

Environment - The totality of physical and human elements found in a particular place; one's surroundings.

Grid - A system of coordinates (lines) on a chart, map, or globe, such as those represented by latitude and longitude, which helps determine the specific location of places and things on Earth's surface.

Human-environment interactions – These are the myriad of ways by which humans, acting as cultural agents, adapt to, use, and modify the natural environment. The natural environment offers resources, options, and challenges that confront all human societies.

Landscape - The totality of one's sensed (e.g., seen) surroundings, including all physical and cultural elements.

Latitude - Angular distance north or south of the equator measured in degrees (0° to 90° N or S). Parallels are the east-west lines on maps and globes that measure latitudinal locations.

Location - "Where it is" in reference to specific or absolute position on Earth's surface, as expressed by means of a grid system, or relative to the position of other places (usually expressed in direction and distance).

Longitude - Angular distance east or west from the arbitrarily established Prime Meridian (0°) to the 180th meridian (which generally coincides with the International Date Line). Meridians are the north-south lines appearing on maps and globes that mark longitudinal locations.

Map - A graphic representation of all or part of Earth's surface that usually is drawn to scale on a flat surface. Most maps include reference to direction and distance (scale), and have a key or legend.

Mental map - A "map" that represents the mental image a person has of an area, including knowledge of features and spatial relationships, as well as the person's perceptions and attitudes regarding the place.

Nation - Territory occupied by a nationality (self-identity, such as "Kurds," or "Flemish") of people. This is not to be confused with state, which is a politically organized and governed territory. A nation-state is a country occupied by a dominant nationality of people (e.g., those countries in which the name is derived from the national language, such as Italy, Norway, or Germany).

Natural resource - Anything in nature that is actually used by a culture is considered a natural resource. Resource is an economic concept based upon a culture's perceptions, values, needs, and technology.

Physical systems - Earth's natural elements: the lithosphere, atmosphere, hydrosphere, and biosphere.

Place - "What is it like there" in reference to physical and human features and conditions of a particular location.

Primary Sources - Original materials from the time period on which other research is based

-Examples: artifacts, audio recordings, diaries, e-mail, interviews, photographs, art, music

Region - An area with one or more common or unifying features or characteristics, which give it a degree of uniformity and set it apart from surrounding areas. Geographers recognize three types of regions: formal (e.g., Corn Belt, Middle West, Great Plains), functional (usually identified by a control point or node, e.g., South Dakota, Sioux Falls, Delta Airlines, HyVee or Safeway grocery chains), or vernacular/perceptual (regions recognized by the general populace, such as East River/West River in South Dakota).

Scale - The relationship or ratio between a linear measurement on a map or globe and the corresponding distance on Earth's surface. It can be expressed in words ("One inch = 10 miles"), shown as a line (bar scale), or given as a fraction (1:1,000,000).

Secondary Sources - Accounts written after the fact with the benefit of hindsight.

-Examples: Bibliographies, commentaries, encyclopedias, textbooks, magazines and newspapers

Settlement - Where people reside, as rural vs. urban, or clustered vs. dispersed. Often includes those structures that house and otherwise indicate a human presence, such as "town," "farm," "suburb."

Spatial - Refers to space on Earth's surface, including such concepts as area, region, location, distance, distribution, and pattern. Geography (spatial = where?), like history (temporal = when?), is a unique methodology, or way to organize and analyze information pertaining to the varied features of Earth's surface.

Supporting Questions - Questions related to the compelling question(s) that allow the learner to construct responses that focus on descriptions, definitions and processes.

-Example: What are my rights as a landowner?

What are the acceptable parameters of clean water?

What kinds of jobs are created by the desire for clean water?

System - A collection of elements that are interrelated or linked in some way as to form a functioning whole, such as the hydrologic cycle, a city, an economic or political entity, or transportation network.

High School U.S. History Issue-Specific Workgroup

This workgroup convened for a meeting on October 7th, 2014 and formatted the High School U.S. History standards and specified whether they were Early, Modern, and/or Comprehensive U.S. History Standards. This guidance will help schools make decisions regarding course offerings for students. Further guidance on the high school graduation requirements can be obtained by contacting the Department of Education and/or by visiting the DOE website: DOE.SD.GOV
