Standards Relating to Key Ideas & Details

6.RL.1 Cite relevant textual evidence to support analysis of what the text says explicitly as well as logical inferences drawn from the text.

6.RL.2 Determine a theme or central idea(s) of a text and how it is conveyed through particular details; provide a summary of the text distinct from personal opinions or judgments.

6.RL.3 Describe how a particular story's or drama's plot unfolds in a series of episodes as well as how the characters respond or change as the plot moves toward a resolution.

Key Ideas and Details: Relevance and Essential Questions: What's the point?

Relevance and Applications: How might the skills in the standards be applied at home, on the job, or in a real-world, relevant context?

We need to learn this so we can put together pieces of information to make a decision about a future event.

We need to learn this so we can use prior knowledge combined with new information to make a decision.

We need to learn this to be able to read and comprehend any text to recognize the stated and unstated meaning in all types of text (e.g., emails, text messages, Internet sites, short stories, poetry, narratives, and social media).

We need to learn this so we can summarize a selection of text in such a way that one of my siblings or parents can understand the story.

We need to learn this because reading for a purpose or enjoyment comes from understanding the central idea of text from literature. We will need to use details and important information to summarize literature and make connections to real world situations (e.g., movie/book review, reading articles, and social networking).

We need to learn this because the elements of a story (e.g., plot and character traits) resemble the events that happen in our own lives; therefore, it's important to discover the similarities so we develop connections to the story and to our own life.

We need to learn this to analyze real world situation on TV or in our lives to see the correlations of the stages of plot in stories and in real life (e.g., movies/book review, newspaper reporters).
