Relevance and Applications: How might the grade level expectation be applied at home, on the job or in a real-world, relevant context?

In day-to-day life, students will read a variety of online and printed informational texts. Understanding an author's language will allow students to recognize underlying intentions or biases of a writer in printed text as well as social media.

In order to differentiate between biased and objective arguments, students need to understand more than one style of organization.

A good reader is able to identify techniques being used by an author to manipulate and persuade. Good readers need to sort emotional from factual information.
