Communicating Conclusions:

- D4.1.6-8. Construct arguments using claims and evidence from multiple sources, while acknowledging the strengths and limitations of the arguments.
- D4.3.6-8. Present adaptations of arguments and explanations on topics of interest to others to reach audiences and venues outside the classroom using print and oral technologies (e.g., posters, essays, letters, debates, speeches, reports, and maps) and digital technologies (e.g., Internet, social media, and digital documentary).

Example strategies to reach depth and intention of the standard

- Venn Diagram or any type of graph that compares present-day Washington D.C with colonial America.
- Illustrate posters depicting colonial views over Britain’s oppression.
- Students will create a propaganda poster explaining what causes they think is the best to justify a war.
- Students create a presentation about how the American Revolution provided an example to follow after and caused revolutions all over the world.

Possible Civic Engagement Activities

These activities include the informed actions that are explicitly tied to the curriculum that are used to assess the knowledge, skills and dispositions of effective civic engagement. Civic engagement can include research, advocacy, direct or indirect action.

Activity:	Description on How to Use the Activity and How it Meets the Grade Level:
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>● Why does conflict lead to political change?</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>● Students can research, compare and contrast, and explain arguments for a variety of political changes that have happened or tried to happen in the United States and around the world. We recommend that students choose or be given some of the following, or allow them to determine their own political changes that occurred because of conflict. Ultimately, we think it is important to understand that past actors believed conflict was necessary. If the teacher wants to extend this, they can have students complete a debate whether they decide the colonists were justified in declaring war on England. Based on that conversation, students should ask what that means for modern day issues that revolve around conflict.</li> <li>● Potential Historic Topics: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>○ South Carolina under Andrew Jackson</li> <li>○ Texas Annexation</li> <li>○ Creation of the Confederate States of America</li> <li>○ Conquering of Native Nations</li> </ul> </li> </ul>
